About this Performance

Music Director Manfred Honeck opens the concert with a dazzling collaboration between two soloist featuring Concertmaster Noah Bendix-Bagley and Principal Viola Randolph Kelly, performing Mozart's Sinfonia concertante in E-flat major. In a Heinz Hall premiere, the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra then performs a bird of a different feather, Cantus Arcticus, a striking original work by Finnish composer Einojuhani Rautavaara that features the recorded song of Arctic birds. The performance ends with a suite from Igor Stravinsky's The Firebird, an instantly successful ballet score that is now more commonly performed as a concert work.
